Connecture Canada is a non-profit organization that focuses on promoting and developing open environments that encourage French-speaking immigrants, black women and bilingual people to explore career, entrepreneurship and personal development opportunities in various sectors through education, networking, training, special events, publications, the creation and distribution of special tools to frame, accompany and support women, young people and, above all, black people or of African origin to understand and access the opportunities available on the market, to become more involved in their own development and to equip themselves to make informed choices that contribute to their development. Our organization's head office is located in Mississauga, in the Halton–Peel region of Ontario, Canada.

We also offer services that cover several geographical areas at the regional, provincial, national and international levels.

Many immigrants and non-immigrants have worked in our organization for several years and their experience has been very useful to us in building our tools.

Our CIBWE chapter has been dedicated exclusively to promoting the success of Black women in Canada since 2015.

Our computer and digital update during this period of the pandemic has favored the building of skills and the online pursuit of our various activities, such as the "Success Path" program, and several online conferences with guests from brand.

Our organization thus exercises its skills in several areas and our priority remains that of employability.

Introduction

This book is a result of an extensive project that combined conferences and research through the practice of over five hundred companies that have implemented employment equity policies in their recruitment processes. We have then selected the best to invite other employers to model them for their own companies in order to eliminate discrimination and open more access to racialized people into the Canadian workforce. This guide is featuring the best practices from selected forty companies that have recognized the importance of implementing equity, diversity and inclusion policies in their work environment and practices. The data used to support these choices come from each company's 2019 sustainability report that we carefully analyzed. The layout describes the actions of each company that applies employment equity in the four sections of employment: Attraction, Recruitment, Retention, and Diversity in the Workplace

Through our series Know Your Employment Rights we were able to provide free interactive and informative sessions aimed at educating participants about the employment rights of job seekers, from the hiring process to formal employment. In addition, each conference offered solutions, tips and tools to help address employment barriers, challenges and gaps for racialized people. Conducted online via Zoom, each conference brought together labor lawyers, HR specialists and managers, and diversity and inclusion managers or specialists. Each presenter was encouraged to share their knowledge and provide advice to the audience in a way that would help them understand their rights during the hiring process. Audiences were able to interact with presenters using the Q&A feature to ask their questions throughout the conference.

On the topic of the Attraction phase, we focused on the rights that job seekers have when applying for a job, the importance of these rights in employment, the importance of equity, diversity and inclusion in the working environment. They also provided advice and solutions to remove barriers to employment for racialized people when applying for work. These conferences featured Busayo A. Faderin, Senior Partner and Labor Lawyer in Toronto, of Monkhouse Law, Puneet Tiwari, Labor Lawyer of Levitt Sheikh, Osaro Obaseki, Labor Lawyer and Partner of Samfiru Tumarkin LLP, and Danielle Rawlinson, associate attorney at Monkhouse Law.

On the topic of the Recruitment phase, we covered the importance of employment rights during the recruitment stage of the hiring process, how the Ontario Human Rights Code protects individuals, red flags and green signals to look for during an interview, barriers racialized people face during this stage, and steps to take before signing legal contracts. These conferences featured Paula Krawus, employment and human rights lawyer at PortaLaw, Colene Roache, senior talent acquisition consultant, Nita Chhinker, co-author of Canada's best-selling post-secondary HRM textbook, and Andrew Goldberg, Senior Partner at Samfiru Tumarkin LLP.

On the topic of the Retention phase, we addressed the issue of employees' rights at the time of hiring, terminations and wrongful dismissals, how the Ontario Human Rights Code protects employees whose rights have been violated, the impact of retention and turnover, and the barriers racialized people face to career success and promotion. These conferences featured Paralegal Leanne Bielli from Samfiru Tumarkin and Partner Shefali Rajaputra from Gowling WLG.

On the topic of the Workplace diversity and how to protect recruited racialized people and make the workplace safe, inclusive, equitable and diverse, we focused on the importance of rights at work, the danger of the "Canadian experience" barrier for racialized people, harassment and discrimination in the workplace, how ease filing a complaint against an employer and importance of diversity and inclusion in a work environment. These conferences featured legal advisors H  l  ne Bever and Danielle Smithen of the Human Rights Legal Assistance Center, attorney Denise Desch  nes of Nelligan Law, permanent attorney Anne-Marie Langan of The Legal Clinic and the Human Resources Generalist Christina Thomas de Rothmans.

We've compiled the forty best practices that many employers with employment equity policies in place have implemented to increase diversity, equity and inclusion with outstanding results.

We encourage many more employers to be inspired to join the fight to end racism and discrimination in the recruitment process and make their companies more inclusive and diverse so everybody in Canada can prosper.

40 best practices
in:

- ❖ Attraction
- ❖ Recruitment
- ❖ Retention
- ❖ Workplace
diversity

I. Attraction phase:

The pre-recruitment stage involves companies using EDI-influenced practices to reach potential employees. For example, the CBC regularly posts open positions on job boards that reach underrepresented communities and works with various organizations that represent designated employment equity groups to attract diverse candidates.

Air Canada

- Attract diverse talent by building partnerships with external organizations and by participating in diverse communities' careers fairs and events, and through close collaboration with their internal Talent Acquisition team

- Attract the best available global talent by having a diverse and inclusive workforce from within to showcase minority people already working at the company and attract other similar minority people

Banque Laurentienne du Canada

- Talent acquisition teams regularly participate in job fairs at high-ranking colleges and universities with diverse students in pursuit of top talent from all backgrounds.

Bell Canada

- Ask job seekers to self identify so recruiters can short list qualified candidates and ensure diverse representation.

Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce (CIBC)

- Removing barriers that prevent team members from the Black community from advancing

CBC

- Media Technology and Infrastructure Services updated the recruitment process by regularly posting open positions on job boards that reach underrepresented communities.
- Recruiters would work with various organizations from underrepresented racialized communities to attract more people from their communities.
- Mentioned their Employment Equity policy in various recruitment ads and the targeted designated groups to attract diverse candidates.

Federal Express Canada Corp

- Targeted recruiting events reach an even more diverse population of African American and Hispanic students, including events at 16 historically black colleges and universities

Jazz Aviation

- Encourages young women to consider careers in aviation by participating in annual Girls Take Flights events and host local events to welcome racialized and Indigenous girls to its head office for a day of learning.
- Conduct an audit of policies and practices to identify and address any systemic barriers or instances of unconscious bias that may impact employment, retention and promotion.

The Canadian Commercial Corporation (CCC)

- With committed encouragement from CCC's human resources employment policies and practices, 50% of CCC's manager and executive vacancies were filled by women.

The CSL Group Inc

- In order to attract a more skilled and diverse workforce, CSL updated their employer brand increase their presence at career fairs and digital media platforms.

Toronto Dominion Bank

- Regularly partners with immigrant serving organizations and other groups that focus on connecting visible minority candidates with potential employers and opportunities

II. Recruitment phase:

At this stage, employers are actively using the best diversity and inclusion policies to bring top talent into the work environment. For example, the Royal Bank of Canada eliminated the Canadian experience requirement during the hiring process. By removing this requirement, it gives newcomers to Canada, immigrants and visible minorities employment opportunities and RBC can focus on and recognize international talent and credentials.

Air Canada

- Educate and coach their employees and recruiting teams on inclusive practices

AT&T Global Services Canada Co.

- Joined the OneTen coalition, a group of corporations pledging to hire 1 million Black Americans over the next 10 years including in their Canadian workforce

CBC

- Sourcing Team: a team within the Recruitment Team aimed to actively seek out candidates from 1/3 minority groups (Indigenous Peoples, Peoples with disabilities and Visible minorities)
- Coach employees on recruitment process, including on how to perform in interviews with specific focus on underrepresented groups,

Federal Express Canada Corp

- Collaborate with the National Urban League, Society of Asian Scientists and Engineers, Society of Hispanic Professional Engineers, Society of Women Engineers, and others to increase our diverse candidate pools through targeted recruitment initiatives.

Jazz Aviation

- Conduct video interviews to enable recruiters to connect with top talent located across the country (including candidates in remote communities). - Employees frequently attended recruitment events that focused on supporting aviation employment opportunities for groups such as Indigenous peoples, People with disabilities and newcomers to Canada.

President's Choice Bank (PC Financial)

- Has several partnerships to increase representation of visible minorities and promote job opportunities through various community agencies that target newcomers.

- Partnerships with these agencies will help achieve diversity goals, business and talent goals; rapidly integrate skilled immigrants into the workplace

Royal Bank of Canada

- Ensuring our recruitment team reflects our diverse population - Eliminating "Canadian experience" requirements and recognizing international credentials
- Updating software that lessens gender bias in job postings - RBC recruiters hosted two mock interview sessions for refugee job seekers in partnership with Refugee Career Jump Start.

Shaw Communications Inc.

- One of the central goals is to increase the number of employees who are female, visible minorities, living with disabilities or Indigenous by building our talent pool through publicizing vacancies to organizations that support these groups.

Stingray Radio Inc

- Adopts Employment Practices that have as their foundation the principles of equity, merit, and accommodation.
 - New employees are given an orientation package that aims to remove/reduce potential obstacles and barriers to diversity, inclusion and employee safety.

- Established a Refugee Task Force which focused on supporting refugee integration and included a recruitment and hiring strategy

VIA Rail Canada

- Actively attract viable minorities through recruitment process, while supporting events that bring greater awareness to their diverse cultural heritage

III. Retention phase:

At this stage, employers focus on the success of the business by maintaining a high retention rate. An important factor in preventing turnover is for employers to show how much they value their employees - especially visible minorities. A.S.P Incorporated demonstrated its commitment to employee retention by conducting a company-wide diversity and inclusion survey that focused on sought-after concepts of inclusion, such as equity, belonging and the voice. The goal was to measure an inclusive environment where people of all cultures, backgrounds and identities can thrive.

Conclusion:

We want to thank the entire team at Connecture Canada, all the organizations, partners, experts, participants and employers who made this project a resounding success. Many thanks to Kadajah Guillaume, the project coordinator who delivered outstanding results and was key to all the steps of the project being well executed. Thank you again to the whole team at Federal Anti-racism Secretariat at Canadian Heritage for acting more like a partner and supporting us not only with funding but availability and ongoing help throughout the entire project.
